1.4. CORE - Competence Oriented Research & Education

We focus on experience-based studying. It's not always about right and wrong, but above all about trying things out and getting to know yourself. Practical team and project work, in addition to internships, prepare you in the best possible way for the working world. At the same time, you train your social skills such as solving problems creatively, the ability to take criticism and thinking outside the box.

Basic advantages of the CORE principle:

- Four thematically focused 5-week blocks per semester
- examination in an appropriate form
- intensive examination of the respective topic
- semester-long band modules
- room for internships or semesters abroad
- consistently competence-oriented

Competencies acquired:

Professional competence

You link and reproduce acquired knowledge, recognize connections, understand important theories and master technical language.

Social competence

You work goal- and results-oriented in teams.

Methodological competence

You apply effective strategies and working techniques according to different situations.

Self-focused competence

You manage yourself and thus develop your professional actions responsibly and reflectively.

You can find more information about the CORE principle on our HOMEPAGE.

2. BEFORE THE START OF STUDIES

2.1. Pre-Arrival Seminars

Our Pre-Arrival Seminars always take place on the following dates:

- ➔ On every first Friday at 1 PM (CET) in:
 - ✓ August & September
 - ✓ February & March

You will receive more information via email shortly before.

2.2. Semester times

The academic calendar will inform you when you have lectures, when the examination periods are and when you have a lecture-free period. You can also find the academic calendars of all schools on our HOMEPAGE.

2.3. Certificate of enrollment

The certificate of enrolment is called an "Immatrikulationsbescheinigung". It is an important document that you need for various German institutions or authorities. Please check point 3.6 IT on how to download the enrolment certificate.

2.4. Apartment search

Starting a new study program often means moving to a new city. To make this challenge a little easier for you, we have put together a few websites, quick facts, and financial suggestions.

You can find more information on our HOMEPAGE.

Success in finding accommodation

General Tipps:

Please note that the SRH University of Applied Sciences does not have its own dormitory, nor does it offer an apartment search service.

- Plan well in advance – the sooner the better – start around 3 months before your study start!
- Plan a visit in Berlin, Hamburg, or Dresden at the early stage of your search to be able to look at flats or rooms in person.
- Book a hostel or hotel if you cannot find accommodation from the first day of your studies.
- As larger cities, Berlin, Hamburg, and Dresden often have long commutes. However, public transportation is very reliable, and bus, tram, subway, and S-Bahn stops can be found on almost every corner. So, if you can't find housing close to your campus, it's worth checking via Google to find out how long it would take you to get from your potential new place to your campus of SRH Berlin University of Applied Sciences.

Be prepared & professional:

- Make sure that your motivational letter and resume are in great shape and form. (i.e., have a picture of yourself, check for grammatical errors.)

- Be exceptionally professional! Refrain from sending short requests to agents/landlords without any additional information about you and your search. The more professional you are, the better!
- Please always make sure that the housing advert is a real offer and not a scam, if you are outside of Germany, you can do that by a videocall or asking a friend to visit the flat, but we suggest never transferring money without seeing the flat first.

Have all your documents ready:

- Best and if possible is a European Bank Account (for SEPA transfers)
- SCHUFA, which is a credit report:
- Passport/visa/personal ID
- Proof of income (Consider that you need your salary slips from the last six months, blocked account, or scholarship to show that you are capable of paying for the rent of the flat.)
- If you are moving for the second time you should be able to show that you don't owe rent to someone (Mietschuldenfreiheitsbescheinigung).
- Mietbürgschaft (if you do not have a stable income, a parent/friend can be your guarantor. Sometimes only German citizens can be guarantors.)
- Application form for the specific flat – provided by the agency/landlord
- Furthermore, you should show that you plan to stay for a long period of time at that flat.

Approx. Costs per month:

Rent	Approx. 500 € - 1000 €
Electricity	Approx. 50 €
TV/ Internet/ Wifi	Approx. 30 €
Broadcasting Fee	18,36 €

Rental Contract:

- Visit your accommodation in person before you sign a rental contract
- Pay attention to the difference between "cold" rent (utilities such as water, gas, garbage collection, cleaning etc. not included) and "warm" rent (including utilities, except electricity/internet/broadcasting fee)
- Working with a real estate agent instead of directly with the landlord/landlady can also generate additional expenses
- In most cases, an initial deposit is required to sign a rental contract, which usually corresponds to two to three months' rent. The deposit must be paid back by the landlord after you move out, if there is no damage to the accommodation or other rental objects (e.g., furniture) caused by you.
- Landlords usually require other documents – please see above!

All in all, you should be able to prove that you are the best choice as a tenant. 😊

Typically German: Broadcasting Fee aka GEZ → HOMEPAGE!

The German public broadcasting contribution (a compulsory contribution, which is paid by all people residing in Germany) is not included in the rent and must be paid separately to the broadcasting company. A fee of 18,36 € per month is charged per household. The GEZ (Gebühreneinzugszentrale) will contact you via mail after you have registered at your new address. If you live in a student dormitory and your room is off a commonly accessible hallway, it is considered a separate household. If you live alone in an apartment or a student dormitory, you are therefore obligated to pay the full amount yourself. If you do not pay after being asked to do so by the broadcasting company, you may face legal consequences. If you live in a shared apartment (WG), the amount is to be paid by only one person in the household. (If several rooms are separated by a separate apartment door from a generally accessible hallway or staircase = WG = Wohngemeinschaft.) Therefore, it is best to discuss with your roommates who is responsible for paying the fee or who is listed as the contact person, then you can share the costs fairly among all household members. If you are renting the room from an existing tenant, talk to him/her to find out whether the broadcasting fee is already included in the rent (e.g., if the main tenant is still responsible for payment and the costs are included in the rent).

Apartments and shared apartments

If you are looking for a cheap and sociable place to live, it is often a good idea to live in a WG (Wohngemeinschaft/ shared apartments). WGs are very popular among students because you can share some of the costs among roommates and easily meet new people.

The first impression counts because based on the apartment applications, providers sort out most seekers. With a well-structured and meaningful request, you can stand out from competitors and increase the chances of getting a viewing appointment. You can find examples for the first contact HERE.

It is also advisable to look for accommodation directly on site and before the start of your studies. In this case, you can stay the first few weeks in a hostel or a holiday flat. For example, it is recommended to search via AIR BNB, where thousands of private accommodations are offered worldwide.

Hostels are the cheaper alternative to hotels and are popular among young people and travelers. You can find hostels for example on HOSTELWORLD OR HOSTELZ.

1) Medical Emergencies

☎ 112 for emergencies

If there is a certain medication that you need to take on a regular basis, make sure that you bring it with you to Germany. Information regarding import can be found here!

2) Health Insurance Requirements for Germany

All students are required by law to be health insured. This insurance coverage must last during the entire study period. Otherwise, they cannot be enrolled at a German University.

3) Health Insurance System in Germany

You have the choice between private ("privat") or public ("gesetzlich") health insurance (they are often called "Krankenkasse").

Approx. 90 % of the students enrolled in German universities opt for the statutory/ public health insurance (about € 110 per month). Here, you will be issued an insurance card which you can use at any doctor, dentist, or hospital without paying for the treatment or equipment (with the exception of low co-pay).

Being insured privately, you need to pay for medical services in advance and hand in all your receipts to file for reimbursement after. This can get costly. Please keep in mind that once you decided to have private health insurance, you will not be able to switch to a public German health insurance! Moreover, if you decide to do a part-time job you will need public health insurance!

4) Submission of Health Insurance Proof to SRH Berlin University of Applied Sciences

All students studying at SRH Berlin University of Applied Sciences (including exchange students) are required to submit proof of sufficient health insurance coverage before the start of studies (until March 31st or September 30th). Otherwise, the university will not be able to enroll you (this means: no documents, no lectures, no services incl. enrollment certificate, and semester schedule).

If you have an insurance plan with a German public health insurance provider, please contact them before the start of studies and ask them to send us an ESMV-message (electronic student reporting process) to clarify your status.

If you have decided to take out private or international insurance (incl. EHIC, AT11), you must also definitely contact a German public health insurance. By presenting your private insurance policy, you will receive a waiver confirming you to be exempted from registering for a public German insurance plan. The public health insurance provider will inform us by sending an ESMV-message.

Students above the age of 30 years or that are enrolled for longer than 14 semesters at a German university must take out private insurance. Please contact a public German insurance company incl. your insurance policy of the private provider, so they can check your status and send us an ESMV-message.

Should you be insured with your parents via a public German insurance company, you are considered fully covered. The public health insurance must receive the info from you on which university you will be studying at, so that the ESMV-message can be send out.

Children of German public officers should carefully consider their insurance because it is connected to child benefits. Starting from 25 years of age, there will not be any payments made in the case of illness. You'd have to be completely privately insured.

Attention: Travel health insurance does not fulfil the requirements needed for enrolment at a German university!

What's best to do ASAP?

To sort out your health insurance status on time and to officially enroll at SRH Berlin University of Applied Sciences, you are advised to contact a German public health insurance provider (by phone, email or in person) shortly after you have been accepted to study at SRH Berlin University of Applied Sciences. See section 7) below for a list of contacts.

5) Start and End Date of Your Insurance

All students must be insured for the entirety of their studies. Looking at regular study periods, that is 6 to 7 semesters for bachelor's degree and 2 to 4 semesters for a master's degree. A semester starts on April 1st or October 1st and ends on March 31st or September 30th of the respective year.

Students of the Tripartite International Management Masters, who start their studies in Granada, Vilnius, Prag (MUP), Prag (AAU) or Querétaro, must prove insurance coverage from the start of the semester at their partner university. Please keep in mind that the entirety of the studies is 4 semesters, and that Master Tripartite students have to be health insured even during their semesters abroad outside of Germany. They can get an additional insurance in the respective countries. Even if their first semester starts in Granada, Vilnius, Prag (MUP), Prag (AAU) or Querétaro, they have to provide us with proof of health insurance because they count as students of a German university.

6) Health Insurance and Your Residence Permit

Please keep in mind that the Foreigner's Office requires students from non-EU countries to submit proof of a German health insurance to process their residence permit applications.

7) Selection of Public Health Insurance Providers

A general list of German public health insurances can be found here:

8) Selection of Private Health Insurance Providers

The following list is not a complete list of German private health insurance providers. Make sure to carefully select your private insurance provider that best fits your needs. The cost for private health insurance plans varies. The more you pay, the more coverage you get (the cheapest insurance often covers only emergency treatment and is not considered sufficient by a public health insurance.)

Additional NOTES:

High costs: If you do need medical treatments, you must pay in advance and submit the bills to the privat health insurance for reimbursement of the money later. This can result in high costs.

Change from Private to Public not possible: Once you have signed up for a private health insurance as a student, you can no longer change to a public health insurance during your studies.

Part-time jobs not possible: If you want to work up to 20 hours per week in a part-time job to finance your living expenses, private insurance will not be accepted from your employer.

Note:

If you arrive in Berlin, Hamburg or Dresden after the official semester start due to visa issues, you can try to reclaim the health insurance fees for the time until your arrival. Please send a scan of your flight tickets to your health insurance. Good luck!

2.6. Visa and residence permit

If you are a citizen of an EU or EEA country, you do not need a visa or a residence permit, you simply register at the citizen's office (Bürgerbüro) with your current address (see 3.2.).

The following sections are important for you if you come from a so-called third country and apply for a visa to enter Germany and/or later need a residence permit for your studies.

Visa

There might be exceptions for certain countries, but most future students first need an entry visa to study. You can find out where exactly to apply on the GERMAN MISSIONS ABROAD. The documents are similar in most countries, but every embassy asks for documents that correspond with the regulations of the particular country. Check the process and the documents that must be handed in on the website of the responsible embassy. Unfortunately, not every website is very clear, but usually you find information under the point 'Visa and Entry'.

You can enter Germany without a visa, if...

- you come from e.g. Australia, Israel, Japan, Canada, New Zealand, Switzerland, South Korea, USA, Andorra, Brazil, El Salvador, Honduras, Monaco or San Marino (the complete and current list can be found HERE). You start your studies with us and apply for a residence permit within three months. The validity of the visa can be seen on the stamp in your passport that you will receive when entering. The visa is valid for three months after entry.
- you are a citizen of a third country and have a permanent residence permit in an EU country. If you do not need an entry visa within the EU, then you apply for a residence permit within three months.
- you are already studying in another EU country and have a residence permit to study there. For just one or two semesters as a guest student in Germany: get in touch with our International Office so they can register you at the federal agency for migration.

Apply for the national D visa for a long-term stay for study purposes. The temporary "Schengen visa" – the so-called C visa – is for tourists only and cannot be converted into a residence permit for study purposes. You can also find this information in more detail on the WEBSITES OF THE CONSULAR MISSIONS.

If you already have a residence permit for study purposes from another German university, then you simply need to apply for an extension four to six weeks before your valid residence permit expires.

Applying for a visa

The exact details vary from country to country. What you always need is the following:

- an application form, which you can find and fill out online at many visa offices
- a valid passport
- the letter of admission from the SRH Berlin
- a blocked bank account (see also the next question and answer)
- proof of health insurance: some embassies accept a travel health insurance, which is only valid for three months, for your entry into Germany. Since you have to be insured from the moment you enter Germany for the first time; this visa will only be valid for 3 months and then, you can take out long-term German health insurance for the residence permit and university enrollment
- a biometric photo that must follow certain GUIDELINES

These are the general requirements that will be requested at all visa offices. For more detailed information, see the WEBSITES OF THE GERMAN EMBASSIES OR CONSULAR MISSIONS.

Proof of financial means

There are several ways to prove that you can finance your life and studies in Germany. The following proofs are possible:

- Your parents can present documents that prove their income and financial assets and assure that they will finance you for the period of your studies.
- A person with permanent residence in Germany can act as your sponsor and guarantee the immigration authorities that he/she will cover your costs.
- You have a bank guarantee or an affidavit.
- You have a promise for a scholarship

The blocked bank account

A blocked bank account (Sperrkonto) is an account into which you deposit a certain amount of money, which you can have transferred to a checking account only once a month. The consular missions usually have a list of banks that they recognize. Setting up a blocked account costs between 50 and 150 € depending on the bank.

Tips

- Calculate your means as generously as possible, especially for your start in Germany. You can already work with the visa for study purposes (i.e. a part-time student job) but studying and working at the same time is not that easy if you have to settle in Germany first.
- Take care of the blocked bank account early because it often takes at least a week until everything is done.
- If you want to use the service of Deutsche Bank, have the application form and the other documents certified by the German Embassy or another consular mission, because Deutsche Bank only accepts originals.
- Many of our students use EXPATRIO GLOBAL SERVICES

Help with filling out the application

First, contact the visa office of the German embassy because they know the process best. We have assembled common questions on our website that will hopefully help but you can also ask our Residence Permit Service at RESIDENCEPERMITSERVICE.HSBE@SRH.DE. We cannot issue you a visa or request an appointment at the embassy, but we will answer any questions as best as we can, and we will be happy to prepare you for the interview.

As a contact in Germany, you can enter the person who sent you the admission documents. This person will be contacted if there are any questions from the embassy. That happens rarely though. If you need documents other than the admission letter and the study contract, please ask our Admissions Team.

Please note that the appointments are made by the embassies or consular missions, we as universities cannot influence this.

Duration of the visa process

Apply for an appointment as soon as you possibly can. It can take several weeks or months until you get an appointment. If you had the appointment at the embassy, it would probably take another four to eight weeks until a decision is made depending on the embassy. The process itself is the same though.

This duration can be explained by the internal process between consular offices and immigration authorities. The consular department sends your application to the German Foreigners Authority in the city where you will live or study. This immigration authority examines the application within at least 21 working days and then reports the decision back to the consular section. Unfortunately, the university cannot intervene in this process. In any case, you will be contacted.

Should your visa application get rejected?

In case of a rejected visa application, the rejection letter states why your application was rejected and what you can do to appeal it. You usually have to file the appeal within a very short time period, so you should act quickly. We may be able to help you with the rejection. Contact us and send us a scan of the rejection letter.

Working with a visa

If you have a visa for study purposes, you can get a part-time job. If you have a visa to search for a study place or for a language course, then you cannot work.

Validity of the visa

Most visas are issued for 90 days, but if you can already present a German health insurance for the visa application (no travel health insurance), you will get a six-month visa. No matter how long the visa is valid: You must first register in Germany with your permanent address and only then can you apply for a residence permit.

Information for Erasmus/exchange students/freemovers within the EU:

If you come from a so called third country and spend one or two semesters with us as a guest student but you have already been enrolled within the EU, then you will most likely fall under the so-called REST directive. This is an agreement between the EU countries where, among other things, students from third countries do not have to apply for an entry visa or a residence permit if they have a residence permit for an EU country. The International Office will then register you with the Federal Office for Migration (BAMF); the procedure does not cost you any money, only your time to submit the documents. The International Office sends a message to all visiting students about this, but you are also welcome to ask at INTERNATIONALOFFICE.HSBE@SRH.DE. If you do need an entry visa, we recommend that you apply for a national annual visa (D) which can be issued for up to 12 months. If you stay in Germany for less than 12 months, you won't have to apply for a residence permit after your entry, you only have to register at the Bürgerbüro in your town of studies.

Information for Tripartite students:

Are you studying International Management and spending your second or third semester outside of Germany?

Then the above mentioned national year visa (D) is not suitable for you, because you need a residence permit to study in Germany in order to apply for further study visas for the corresponding countries of the partner universities.

Are you starting your study program in a country other than Germany?

If you are participating in the Master Tripartite Program and you are starting the 1st semester in Querétaro, Vilnius, Granada or Prague, please contact the Mexican, Lithuanian, Spanish or Czech embassy in the country from which you will enter Mexico, Lithuania, Spain or the Czech Republic and inquire if you need a visa to enter and study. If yes, then begin the appropriate application process. Check with the German Embassy in Mexico, Lithuania, Spain or the Czech Republic if you need an entry visa for studying in Germany.

Entry into Germany in times of Covid-19

Coming to Germany during Covid times can be a struggle. Germany has compiled a list of virus variant areas. Check out the list HERE. Go back frequently since this list is subject to change.

Entry regulations are constantly changing. Please check this before you start your trip to Germany. For more information, take a look at the website of the FEDERAL FOREIGN OFFICE or the FEDERAL MINISTRY OF THE INTERIOR, BUILDING AND COMMUNITY.

2.7. Fees and Payments

You will find all information about the amount and due date of the fees in your study contract under point 4 "Fees". Annex 1 of the study contract also contains a fee overview for the entire study period and Annex 2 contains the direct debit mandate.

Please fill out the SEPA direct debit mandate before you start your studies. If you would like to change your payment method to direct debit after the start of your studies, you are welcome to send the completed direct debit mandate by e-mail to FEEMANAGEMENT.HSBE@SRH.DE.

If you are not from a SEPA region, you can transfer the tuition fees or pay via FLYWIRE. Please always mention your name and matriculation number in the subject of the transfer.

3. AT THE START OF YOUR STUDIES

3.1. Finalize your To Do List!

Before you start your studies, make sure to check all the boxes on our TO DO LIST, which you will receive during the Pre-Arrival Seminar. If you cannot find it, drop us an email to STUDENTSERVICE.HSBE@SRH.DE!

3.2. Welcome Week

Approximately 2 weeks before your semester start, you should receive the following documents for preparation:

- Detailed information about the Welcome Week
- SRH login data for our student portal Campus Net and your access to MS Office incl. MS Teams

We recommend that you settle into the city a few weeks before the start of your studies so that you get to know your neighborhood and find out where your SRH University is located.

The Welcome Week takes place in the first week of the semester (you will receive the schedule with exact dates by e-mail from our Student Service). During this week you will get to know our campus, our staff, and lecturers as well as your fellow students. We will also introduce you to all our services (Career Service, Student Service, International Office...) and organize activities, workshops, and games for you to liven up the week.

During your Administration Check, you will receive your student card and your semester ticket. But before that, you must submit the following documents:

- Certified Copy of high school diploma/bachelor's degree
- Original signed study contract
- Proof of Payment
- Health insurance company and insurance number
- certificate of exmatriculation of previous German university

If you don't know our campus yet, you can get a first impression here:

DRESDEN SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT

3.3. Registration at the Citizen's Office

Everyone who moves into a new apartment or room, whether in the same city or when newly arrived in Germany, must register their new home within two weeks. You register at the registration office in the city where you live; in Berlin this is the Bürgeramt, but if you live outside of Berlin, you can find the address on the website of the respective city administration.

- Overview of the Bürgerämter in Dresden
- Online appointment at the Bürgeramt

Registration is free of charge, and you can download the forms for it on the websites of the Bürgeramt (see below). If you are moving into a new apartment with several people, everybody must register.

To meet the two-week deadline after you move in, book your appointment online 4 to 6 weeks in advance. New appointments are posted every morning, so you can almost always book a spontaneous appointment. Update the appointment page in the morning between 8 and 9 am.

After registering, you will get a written confirmation called Meldebescheinigung or Anmeldebestätigung that especially foreign students need to apply for a residence permit.

For the registration you need the following documents:

- Proof of identity (e.g., passport or ID card)
- Filled out REGISTRATION FORM
- Confirmation of move-in from the landlord/landlady (see also SAMPLE FORM from the Citizens' Registration Office and notes below)
- If necessary, SUPPLEMENTARY SHEET FOR REGISTRATION (if you are registered in several apartments in Germany)
- Certificate of birth and if applicable marriage certificate

Confirmation from your landlord/landlady: You will need a confirmation that you moved into your new accommodation. The official landlord/landlady (or the housing association) must confirm your move-in within two weeks. This can be done by using the SAMPLE FORM provided!

You can find more information about registration HERE.

3.4. Application for the residence permit

If you need a residence permit, you will find initial information here on how and where you can do this. In the introduction week and during the lecture period we offer you regular events, where we will inform you in detail. Therefore, we provide just a basic overview here.

When do you apply for the residence permit?

You need to apply for the residence permit about six weeks before your visa expires. You can see the expiration date on the visa sticker in your passport or on the entry stamp. You do not have to get the residence permit immediately after your arrival. You can register at the citizen's office first and settle into your new town. (More information about this during the introduction week or in the info sessions of Residence Permit Service during the lecture period). Once you have submitted the application, your visa gets extended automatically and is valid at least until a decision about your residence permit application has been made.

Apply for a residence permit

You can apply for a residence permit at the appropriate office in the city where you reside (for registration see section 3.2). You can find further information on the respective website of the corresponding administrative office for the city in which you are registered.

Berlin: Usually, you can make an appointment yourself at the LANDESAMT FÜR EINWANDERUNG (LEA), but at this moment in time it is only possible through our Residence Permit Service. All students who are registered in Berlin can use this service. We check your documents as thoroughly as possible and submit the papers to the LEA. It will take two to four weeks, until we receive an appointment for you. We will send you an email with the appointment time and location. You will then go to the LEA on your own to have your fingerprints taken and pay the fee. You best check out our WEBSITE where we have detailed descriptions of the process. If you have any questions, feel free to e-mail RESIDENCEPERMITSERVICE@SRH.DE.

What does the residence permit look like?

Almost always, the so-called eAT (= electronic residence permit) is in the size of a credit card. The card has additional functions which you can have activated. You get the information from the authority where you submitted the application.

Do you have Swiss citizenship?

Then you don't have to apply for a residence permit, but you register your stay within three months at the corresponding city administration. You will be issued a so-called residence permit-Switzerland. In Berlin, you can submit your application and documents to the SRH Residence Permit Service. If you live in another city, you can contact the local city administration.

What documents do you need to submit?

If you want to apply for a residence permit in Berlin, you need to submit the following documents:

- filled out application form
- color copy of passport (Switzerland: identity card)
- a current biometric passport photo
- copy of your study visa for Germany
- certificate of registration from the registration office (Bürgeramt - Meldebescheinigung)
- enrollment certificate of the SRH Berlin
- proof of sufficient health insurance valid for the entire period of your studies (insurance confirmation & waiver form, if applicable)
- proof of financial support: check our WEBSITE for current numbers.
- payment of tuition fees for the current and, if applicable, the next semester
- processing fee (currently about 100€)
- additional documents may be required (fees and rates are subject to change depending on when you hand in your signed contract)

The documents should be in German, but many authorities also accept documents in English. If you need to submit translations, they should be notarized. Make sure to check for specific information on the corresponding website of the appropriate authorities relating to your application. Some countries even offer their citizens documents in several languages.

Work and internship with residence permit

If you are looking for a job on the side, you can do that with your residence permit. You are allowed to work up to 120 full days (1 full day = 8 hours per day) or 240 half days (half day = 4 hours per day) per calendar year. Self-employment (also freelance) is unfortunately not allowed, but it is sometimes possible that you can apply for permission, e.g. if the self-employment is closely related to your studies - so definitely try!

Activities that are designated as "student jobs" can be carried out without a time limit. These are, for example, jobs as a student assistant at a university or university-related institution or working student activities in a company that are related to your studies. Be careful: if you work more than 20 hours per week, you may have to take out a different health insurance.

Mandatory internships in Germany do not count towards the 120 full days. Internships abroad are not counted at all.

Validity of the residence permit

The validity is written on the card or the sticker in the passport. If you get a sticker in your passport and your passport expires, then the residence permit also loses its validity.

Studies and internships abroad with a residence permit

If you are out of Germany for less than six months, then you don't have to do anything. If you want to stay away longer your residence permit is only valid in combination with your passport. When your passport expires, your residence permit also loses its validity. If you leave Germany for more than 6 months, your residence permit will automatically lose its validity.

Responsibility for a valid residence permit

Naturally, we are happy to help you with information and support, but in the end, the responsibility for the validity of your residence permit lies entirely with you. It can be helpful to put an resident permit expiration reminder in your phone. Make sure that you arrange an appointment with the responsible authority well ahead of time!

Can I be exempted from buying the semester ticket?

- Cancellation process: You must cancel the ticket up to 4 weeks before the start of the semester. To do so, send an e-mail including proof of absence (e.g. internship contract) to STUDENTSERVICE.HSBE@SRH.DE
